

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

New and improved methods and systems for creating collared option financial hedge products enable multiple customers to pool their assets into a single product. In contrast the prior art where such products were 'tailor-made' to individual investors, demand is collected across multiple investors and one or more collared option financial hedge products are created. Multiple customers are then permitted to participate in each product. Such hedge products are thus more readily available to a larger group of customers.